This Scenario is dedicated to my wife Nan, and my children Roe and Kathleen, who have sacrificed an entire, irreplaceable year out of our lives together, so that I might work far from home bringing forth what you now hold in your hands. The dream contained within is as much theirs as it is mine. May you enjoy it in the fullness of time!

The Prequel

Five years have passed since I captured the mystical amulet from the Mad Overlord Trebor. His agents had only been a few hours ahead of me in obtaining the artifact. The amulet had lain hanging around the neck of a forgotten god's statue in an ancient crumbling Temple. Whose Temple it once was is now whispered faintly only in ancient and forbidden tomes. Never is the full name used, perhaps for fear of invoking something dreadful that might be merely slumbering.

The mist enshrouded valley that hides the Temple has been known throughout time as the Gods' Hopyard, supposedly because of a great portal that was opened one night by a demented archmage. It is said in arcane legends that on that night the Gods came here and played. The world shook and mountains danced. The whole sky was afire with shimmering colors. As dawn rose, a gigantic voice suddenly blasted out a harsh command, and everything in the world froze in mid-stride. Then there seemed to be a great inhaling, a loud implosion, and the world moved again. The portal was gone. Who or what chased back the Gods and closed the portal no one knows. It was a long while before anyone was brave enough to venture into the valley to find out what had occurred. It was quite difficult to see as a dense mist now covered to the valley edges. In the far end of the valley there loomed a gigantic Temple of a style never before seen. In its center was an altar room wherein stood a statue. Around the neck of the statue hung an amulet that glowed with such magical energy that none could gaze upon it for long.

As to what this amulet is, or to whom it might have belonged, the greatest scholars of the last three millenia have debated. Some feel that it was the focus by which the portal was opened, and any who possessed it could open the way for the Gods' return. Others theorized that it was too powerful to have originated on this worldly plane, and so must have been left behind during the retreat of the Gods. A third group partially agreed with the second; the amulet was not of this dimension, but was used by whatever chased away the Gods. Thus the artifact was more powerful than the Gods themselves! Furthermore, they warned, the Temple, statue and amulet were placed in the valley to seal the portal and prevent the Gods' return. This group was, of course, scoffed at by other scholars, as the implications of their theory was much too disturbing to contemplate.

Over the ages, many thieves and mages have been drawn to the amulet and the legends that surround it. All who have sought to possess it have failed. I, Werdna, the most powerful Wizard of this Age, was always intrigued by speculations about the wonders of the amulet, but was much too prudent to enter the Temple without the proper safeguards. The most infuriating thing to me was no one knew so much as a hint of what those safeguards might be. No one had any idea why each previous attempt into that eldritch vale had met with disaster.

Then one day I was approached by a dealer of dubious antiques. Amongst the obvious fakes and worthless old bones was a scroll that he claimed was over a thousand years old. He assured me that no one had ever opened it, and demanded an outrageous 500 g.p. for the item. Intrigued, I haggled him down to a mere 80 g.p. and took the scroll back to my study. When I attempted to break open the seal, it popped off in my hand! The scroll had been carefully opened and then gently resealed. Making a note to summon a demon to deal with the scurrilous knave, I settled down to study the scroll. It actually seemed quite old and was in very poor condition. The inscriptions were faded and of a tongue quite unknown to me. It took but a few minutes for my arts to restore the lettering to legibility, but it took almost a year's worth of intense research to translate the message.

Wonder of all wonders, the scroll appeared to be written by the apprentice to the wizard who opened the gate that night so long ago. His mind seemed to have been blasted by what he had seen, for only stray bits and snatches of thought were scribbled on the scroll. He kept repeating over and over again something about the glowing eye of THE GOD, which I took to mean the amulet. He also ranted about losing the Mythril Gauntlets entrusted to his care, and groveling for forgiveness from someone or something. The last part of the scroll was filled with dire prophecies and fears for his own eternal torment.

I was filled with hope. If I could correctly follow the clues this document provided, the amulet and all its power could be mine. Now I regretted consigning the soul of the antique dealer to Hell. In the hope that the gauntlets mentioned in the ancient scroll were the means by which the amulet could be handled safely, my agents went in search of them. After many months of seeking, they were able to procure but a single glove. In my gratitude for their obtaining half of a pair of gloves, I only had half of them executed. Well, one gauntlet would have to suffice.

Now armed, I set off for the misty vale in search of my destiny. Alas, mere hours ahead of me, others entered the Temple and absconded with the amulet. At first, I was so shocked to see it gone that I just slumped to the floor. Then I noticed what appeared to be fresh footprints in the thick dust on the floor. I followed them for a short while, but lost them on the hard ground outside the Temple. Racing back to my tower, I used my scrying mirror to show me what had transpired outside the valley, for even my skills could not penetrate that mist within the valley.

Four men shrouded in black robes entered the valley. Shortly, three men left. (I had seen no body, so what happened to the fourth man?) One of the men carried something at arm's distance. For an instant I caught a glimpse of a bluish-grey gleaming glove on the man's hand, then the mirror was blasted into a thousand fragments. He also had one of the fabled gauntlets. The scroll was right! Now I understood why it had been unsealed...that old fraud had made copies of the scroll!

I conjured up two of my favorite demons and sent them to pay the antique dealer's soul a visit. They returned shortly, having "persuaded" the shade to talk. I learned that although the dealer had made five copies of the scroll, he had sold only one of them prior to his demonic dismemberment. The Mad Overlord, Trebor was the owner of this copy. I gathered my creatures about me and cast a Malor to Trebor's Castle. While my pets were keeping the staff quite busy, I cast a Mamorlis spell on everyone in Trebor's audience room. It was quite humorous to see Trebor frozen in abject terror upon his throne. He wore the mystic gauntlet upon his right hand and dangling from that glove was a captured sun, so bright was its radiance. Carefully, I put on my gauntlet and plucked the amulet from the cradle of his glove. So as not to seem ungrateful, I did leave Trebor one of the Damien stones I usually carried around with me. They make such fine thoughtful gifts, heh, heh, heh! Calling my servants to me, I cast another Malor back to my tower.

At last, the amulet was mine!!! The power of a universe was at my disposal. Ah, so drunk was I with visions of great and terrible deeds. What to do first? My tower seemed unfitting for a would-be god. Something more splendid, more spacious. Perhaps a split level...no, many levels...ten levels, that's it! Where to put this magnificent edifice? Well, it should be somewhere away from prying eyes and possible thieves, yet not too far from a food source for my hungry pets. Aha, I'll put it under Trebor's nose, literally. I'll build it under his poor excuse for a Castle!

The very next day I started the major invocation. Everything went smoothly until I keyed in to the amulet. I only opened a tiny conduit to it in order to provide more power for my conjuring. What I got was a blast of raw energy that almost vaporized me on the spot. It was a good thing that I had been working behind a shield. The ground beneath the Castle was melted, churned, and twisted out liked pulled taffy. When everything cooled, I indeed had my ten level underground fortress maze, although it was much wilder than I had envisioned. That was good, for the backlash of that awesome force had completely obliterated my tower! More than somewhat shaken, I Malored down to my new abode. I had barely tapped whatever lay within the amulet, yet it had almost destroyed me. I vowed never to invoke it again until I could discover how to channel its power.

Five years passed without the amulet yielding up any of its secrets. Oh, I did discover a few small details, like why a gauntlet was necessary. One evening I was preoccupied with my studies, and I asked one of my many minions to fetch the amulet from behind its darkly smoked glass case so I could examine it. Suddenly, I heard a pop and a thud of the amulet dropping to the floor. My servant had failed to put on the gauntlet. When it touched the amulet, the creature had just vanished. That could have been me! After that I kept the gauntlet on the case, so I wouldn't forget again.

Finally, tragedy did strike, but of a different form. I was entertaining a Vampire Lord and several of his leigemen, when the door to my study was kicked open and in burst a wild-eyed team of adventurers bent on my destruction. I was too far away from the amulet to reach it in time, and my pentagram for summoning monster allies was on the other side of the room. I quickly gathered up my energy and began to cast the awesome Tiltowait spell, while my guests rushed forward to my defense. Just as I unleashed that hellish fireball, I saw the Vampire Lord dissolved by a Zilwan spell! So, they had a high mage also. What! They still stood! That's one very tough team. Another Tiltowait should finish them, though. Before I could cast it, the leader of the team stepped in under my outstretched arms and delivered a critical hit to me. As my consciousness faded, I heard one of his men say, "Hawkwind, I have the amulet! Trebor will be pleased." I cursed Trebor with my last breath that he might endure endless torment. My final view was of their black banner bearing both a gold and a silver dragon in bend, and of the amulet dangling from the end of a sword. Then darkness claimed me and I slept as unto death.

Playing The Return of Werdna

Before playing The Return of Werdna, you must make copies of your Master Diskette(s). Depending upon your model of computer, the game will contain one or more Master Diskettes. The very first thing you must do is make copies of these Diskettes. You will need one blank Diskette for each Master Diskette in your package.

- IMPORTANT:

You cannot play The Return of Werdna on the Master Diskettes we supply. You must make copies.

Making copies of your Master Diskette(s)

The first time you play The Return of Werdna, you will have to start the program with your Master Diskette. Find the Diskette labeled Master Diskette "A" and insert it into your computer's first disk drive. Turn the computer on, and wait for the title page screen to appear. At this point you will have two options: MAKE SCENARIO DISK or START GAME.

Press M to make a Scenario Diskette. You will first be asked how many disk drives you have. Press 1 or 2. If you have only one disk drive, you will have to swap Diskettes in and out of the drive in order to make the copy.

Next, follow the series of screen messages which ask you to place Diskettes in disk drives. Follow the directions carefully. When you are asked to insert a MASTER DISKETTE, the program wants to see one of the Diskettes supplied in your package. If you are asked for a BLANK DISKETTE, you should insert a Diskette supplied by you. The program checks to make sure that you inserted what it wanted. If you made a mistake, it will inform you, abort the process, and repeat its request.

- You don't need to format blank Diskettes. This is done automatically for you.
- If the blank Diskette you supplied has data on it, you will be asked if you really want to use it. If you do, all the information that was on the Diskette will be erased.
- If there is a problem and the copying cannot be completed, you will be informed. Try again with a new blank Diskette.
- Master Diskettes are permanently write-protected (they don't have a notch) so they cannot be written to. Under no circumstances should you customize your Master Diskettes by punching a write protect notch in them. This will seriously damage your Master Diskette.

If your package contains more than one Master Diskette, you should make a copy, using the MAKE SCENARIO option, of each Diskette. You will note that each Master Diskette's label has an "A", "B", "C", etc. printed on the label's right side. When you label your Scenario Diskettes, you should include that letter on the label so you can tell them apart.

- The "Boot Diskette" is always Master Diskette "A".
- Always remember, Master Diskettes are the Diskettes supplied in the Return of Werdna game package. Scenario Diskettes are copies of these Diskettes made by you. You always play on Scenario Diskettes, never on your Master Diskettes.
- Always use the MAKE SCENARIO DISK option to make copies of your Master Diskettes. Other programs (such as a copy utility) can copy the Diskettes incorrectly, and/or destroy your Master Diskettes.

Starting the Game

Return of Werdna is self-contained. You will not need to transfer any characters into this game.

When you have made your Scenario Diskettes, turn off your computer, place Scenario Diskette "A" (not Master Diskette "A") in the first disk drive, and turn the computer on again. When you see the title page, press S to START GAME. In a few moments, the Save Game page will appear.

The Save Game page gives you a brief synopsis of the awful position you are in. YOU ARE WERDNA, the infamous evil wizard, and life is not at all a bed of roses. Trapped at the bottom of a prison dungeon, you must fight your way out. With any luck, you will be able to wreak your revenge upon the do-gooder adventurers who have placed you here. Most of all, you want to get your hands on your nemesis, Trebor!

To begin playing, press P to PLAY GAME, then select the saved game you wish to resume playing by typing a number (1-8). There are 8 Save Game slots to choose from initially, but if you need more, you may generate another Scenario Diskette "A" (label this Diskette "A2" to avoid confusion) for another 8 save positions. If you want to start from the beginning of the game, press RETURN. Initially, all 8 Save Game slots are empty, so if you select one, you will start at the beginning of the game. Whenever you begin a new game, or go between levels in the Maze, you may be asked for your Mordor Charge Card Authorization number. Refer to the enclosed Mordor Charge booklet for the full procedure.

When playing, all of the options familiar to you from playing previous Wizardry Scenarios are available. Some of the options have been extended and improved to make play easier (Refer to page 13 for listing). For example, many menus have a default option you can select by pressing RETURN. The default option has a "." symbol following its first letter instead of a ")".

The most important change is in the QUIT GAME option. In The Return of Werdna, when you QUIT GAME, you will have the opportunity to save your current position in one of the 8 Save Game slots, even if you are in the Maze! Yes, that's right, you can now save your games while trudging around in the Maze. This lets you keep up to 8 "milestones" in your play of the game available, just in case (heh heh) you need to backtrack. VERY IMPORTANT: Think of utilizing Save Game as a form of meditation. Since you are taking a pause to regroup before tackling a difficult task, the players and the guardians also take advantage of this interval to revitalize, while you are concentrating on "The Big Picture". If these Save Games are used wisely, your pace will be quickened; used imprudently, a creeping coin's pace will be faster!

Backing up your Position

You can also move a Save Game from one Scenario Diskette "A" onto another Scenario Diskette "A" by using the MOVE SAVE GAMES option on the Save Game page. You will be asked to insert the original Scenario Diskette "A", select the Save Game you wish to move, then insert the other Scenario Diskette "A" you wish to save it on. You can also make a backup of all 8 Save Games on a Diskette by using the MAKE SCENARIO option to copy the Diskette. On a long quest like The Return of Werdna, this is really important to do. Always make sure you have a current backup of your Save Games, in case power fluctuations destroy your Diskette!

Caveat Werdna

Don't assume that just because you are an expert Wizardry player, you know exactly how things work. You don't. Trust us, even the Gods don't know everything. The only thing you can trust is that we have spent several years making The Return of Werdna a fiendish test for expert adventurers. If you finish even one of the several possible endings (quite a dubious possibility), you will have earned the rank of Master Adventurer. For those few whom consider themselves The Elite gameplayers, a challenge: Find and finish the one really special ending, and you will have earned the exalted title of "Grand Master Adventurer." (Use the enclosed card to claim your spoils!)

Multiple Diskettes

Some computers use disk drives that do not have the capacity to hold the entire Return of Werdna program. To run The Return of Werdna on these computers, we have split the program onto multiple Diskettes.

Occasionally, when you are playing, the program will require information not on the Diskette being used. When this happens, a window will pop up, and you will be asked to insert another Diskette. You should have identified each copy of a Master Diskette with its corresponding letter. The first Diskette is Scenario Diskette "A", the second is Scenario Diskette "B", and so on. So you might be asked to INSERT SCENARIO DISKETTE "A", for example. Remove the Diskette, replace it with one required, then press RETURN. If you insert the wrong Diskette, the error will be detected, and you will again be asked for the correct Diskette.

- If you have two or more disk drives, each disk drive will be checked for the new Diskette. This means that in many cases you will be able to play without any Diskette shuffling.
- Some computer models have extra memory. This memory may be used to store parts of the game so that those sections do not have to be recalled from Diskette. If this is the case, after you START GAME, important parts of the game will be loaded into extra memory. You will be told that this is going on, and may be asked to swap Diskettes if your package contains multiple Diskettes.

New Features

New releases of Wizardry products have many new enhancements. If you own an older version of Proving Grounds of the Mad Overlord or Knight of Diamonds, the new style of the Wizardry Gaming System may be a little unfamiliar at first. The user interface now uses multiple overlapping windows. Selections are still made by pressing keys (in most cases, the traditional keys), and all of your options are presented in menus on the screen. The new features have been added to make the Wizardry Gaming System easier and more fun to play.

- The Maze display fills the entire screen.
- You can toggle the various Maze windows ON and OFF. You can also flip the STATUS window on and off separately. This lets you see more of the Maze.
- Patterns are now used to identify stairs, messages, special objects and darkness on the maze floor and walls.
- You only need to type the first few letters of a spell name in order to cast it. If what you type is ambiguous you'll be asked to select the spell you wanted from a list.
- Many menus now have default choices you can select by pressing RETURN. If a menu choice is a default, instead of a ")" after the first letter in the entry, you will see a "J".
- It is now possible to Save Game while in the dungeon. Eight slots are available on Scenario Diskette "A". (See Page 11 for details.)

The Wizardry Hotline

Whatever computer you are using to play The Return of Werdna, it is possible to find yourself at an impasse. Perhaps you aren't able to solve a riddle, or maybe you can't find a needed item of treasure. Don't worry; the Wizardry Hotline is standing by to listen sympathetically, offer words of encouragement, and perhaps dispense a vague hint or two. Then again, considering how tough The Return of Werdna is, they may ask you for help! So only call if you are really desperate. After all, you are supposed to be an expert player!

Hotline assistance is available from 4 to 8 p.m. (Eastern time) on weekdays, and from noon to 6 p.m. on weekends and U.S. Federal holidays. Just dial (315) 393-6633 (sorry, we cannot accept collect calls) and ask for the Wizardry Hotline. The Hotline operator will be happy to consider answering any Sir-Tech game-related questions.

In case of trouble, which Diskettes do you return to Sir-tech?

More than likely you will never encounter any difficulties with your Diskettes when you are playing The Return of Werdna. However, if a problem does arise, here are our suggestions to resolve the problem as quickly as possible:

1) PROBLEM: One of the Scenario Diskettes does not read/write properly. (This is usually due to a bad sector or medium on the diskette you furnished.)

SOLUTION: Take a fresh blank Diskette and make a new Scenario Diskette from the appropriate Master Diskette. If the problem Diskette was Scenario Diskette "A" where all the Save Games are stored, use the MOVE SAVE GAMES option to transfer all your Save Games to the new Scenario Diskette "A". Reboot and continue playing.

Never send Scenario Diskettes back to Sir-tech unless the MOVE SAVE GAMES option is itself broken. Sir-tech will try to salvage as many of the Save Games as possible and return a new Scenario Diskette with those Save Games on it.

2) PROBLEM: The Master Diskette is defective. This is determined by making several Scenario Diskettes from the Master Diskette and none of them work properly.

SOLUTION: Return the Master Diskette in question to Sir-tech (See section on Diskette Warranty at the end of the manual.) When you receive your new Master Diskette, make a Scenario Diskette and continue playing.

If the Master Diskette is Diskette "A", Sir-tech will exchange the problem Diskette for a new Master Diskette "A". When this Diskette arrives, make a new Scenario Diskette "A", and transfer Save Games via the MOVE SAVE GAMES option.

Only send the defective Master Diskette back to Sir-tech, not the whole set. Otherwise you will be needlessly charged $7.50 for every Master Diskette returned.

3) PROBLEM: New replacement Master Diskette still does not function properly.

SOLUTION: Now is the time to suspect problems with your equipment. Check your disk drive(s) for speed and alignment. Also, unusual add-on boards may cause interference problems. Remove all extra boards from the computer (power off first!), then try running the game. If these solutions are still not adequate, contact Sir-tech directly for technical support.
